THE PACKERS SALUTE THE STOCKMEN!

The year 1956 saw Canada's meat production attain a new peacetime record with the total dressed weight of commercial meat output surpassing the two billion pound mark. This was due in no small part to the fact that inspected slaughterings of cattle and calves, both in the United States and Canada, set new records.

It was indeed a year of records. But records are not made by individual effort. They are the result of teamwork . . . and it was this teamwork in action by the livestock producers, the processors and the retailers—all efficiently serving the consumer—that made this record volume of production and consumption possible.

Our council recognizes the need for this spirit of co-operation to flourish continuously between the members of the meat team in order to build a better meat industry. It is aware of its own responsibility in furthering this aim. With this in mind we salute the Purebred Breeders who supply the seed stock to the commercial producers of our cattle . . . and we salute all stockmen for their combined effort to improve the quality of Canadian Beef

BETTER TIMES AHEAD - - Editorial

Working on the land, farming and ranching, has always been an uncertain occupation, and while it was once considered a simple job, it has now become one of the most complex ways to earn a living.

More than ever before farming, whether with crops or livestock, requires a keen ability to foresee trends in coming years. Not only must the farmer and rancher attempt to foresee climatic conditions, rainfall, varieties and markets, which involves surplusses and overproduction, but he must also attempt to see in his crystall ball decisions of governments, those of other nations as well as his own.

However, in these many requirements for his successful operation he can seek the aid of experts in almost every line. Since we are primarily interested in the future of the cattle industry, some of these factors and predictions can to our advantage be studied carefully.

Looking back, it is plain now that catle prices in 1952 were far too high for the economy. It was a lush period, but the outbreak of Foot-and-Mouth plunged at least the Canadian industry into a few years of relative depression, by backing up a surplus of beef. By 1955 Canada's cattle industry had moved out of this trouble. In that year, for the first time in history, imports to Canada actually exceeded exports. We were in a position where the domestic market could absorb our entire beef production. Nineteen hundred and fifty-six has firmly established this position, so that looking ahead, stockmen in Canada have little to fear in the way of a surplus—if . . .

The if, is contingent on the general economy to a certain extent for if buying power remains constant there is every indication Canadians will eat all of the beef we can produce. Under these conditions, some may wonder why we are not receiving a better price for cattle at the stockyards.

As far as the Canadian local market is concerned, it is quite likely cattle prices would be several dollars higher, but just as we in Canada for a half a century depended on the U.S. market to provide a floor under our cattle prices, now the Chicago market is our ceiling.

Only a few years back, we were in the position, when we had more cattle to sell than Canadian packers could absorb, we shipped them to the U.S. and had the benefit of the U.S. market to hold our prices about in line, less the shipping costs. Now, whenever say the Toronto cattle market rises about $3.00 above Chicago, Canadian packers can bring in cattle from across the line. What was once our crutch, has become our cross. We can not escape the continental aspects of our market, except in one way, duties on imports. Cattlemen as a group have never liked duties, in the past mainly because tariffs would have worked to our disadvantage.

Generally they have opposed international trade restrictions of any kind, and with good reason. In Canada, agriculture is in the unenviable position of operating on a free trade world market, while virtually every other phase of the Canadian economy operates with some measure of protection behind a customs wall. And even without any customs, there is always the Canadian 10 percent sales tax on every article sold in the country, with a few exceptions, mainly of food—so here again the farmer faces his market at a disadvantage.

It is little wonder farm income has faced a difficult time keeping up with a general economy bolstered with a 10 percent preference. Any small concessions in the way of price supports for farm produce, have been so insignificant as to have no influence on the general farm economy.

Farmers have received no special consideration either on income tax, which might be one way of making some adjustment, so that they would operate in a more equitable position as with regards the rest of the industry of the country. The weakness here is that those farmers who did not accrue sufficient income to be liable to tax, would still be under the same discrimination as in the past.

But even governments in Ottawa and Washington have in recent years become increasingly aware, that those still on the land, were not receiving an even break in the matter of return for their labor.

In most countries of the world, governments have paid some form of direct subsidy for certain types of production, mainly wheat. In the United States the subsidies have covered almost every form of agricultural production, mainly by way of guaranteed returns for crops, bonus and incentive payments for wool, etc.

The latest proposal is the soil bank, involving payments for leaving or taking land out of production on crops in surplus. The evident weakness of the current program is that lands converted from cereals to forage crops—MUST NOT BE PASTURED NOR THE HAY HARVESTED. This seems amazing in view of the fact that this continent is rapidly becoming a meat deficiency area. Bluntly, only Australia, New Zealand and Argentina are still major meat surplus areas. Canada has the potential to vastly increase livestock production, but there is little indication of any marked increase. Also notably, the entire world is deficient in wool production. World production annually is barely 10 percent of world wool demands. We remain able to meet demands only because wool is a fibre which can be reclaimed and used over and over again.

THE GREAT DROUGHT

Getting back more specifically to the cattle industry, the relatively low prices of the past few years were not affected in any overall way by the Foot-and-Mouth outbreak—but it seems they have been affected in a great measure by the greatest drought in 700 years on this continent.

By the start of 1957, the drought which began in the Texas region, had spread far to the north, affecting much of Nebraska and even some of South Dakota. It covered almost all of Kansas, much of Missouri, some of Colorado, virtually all of Oklahoma and Texas and smaller areas of New Mexico and Arkansas. These areas have been alarmingly low in moisture, and pasture feeds rated below 35 percent. Listed by the USDA as below 50 percent pasture availability, were areas extending into Arizona, Utah, Wyoming, Montana, North Dakota, Iawo, Wisconsin, Illinois, Michigan, Kentucky, Tennessee and Louisiana.

All of Oklahoma's 77 counties are declared disaster areas. Two-thirds of Kansas' 115,000 farmers have been forced to seek off-farm employment to support their families.

Ten thousand of 17,500 residents of Karnes county in Texas were on relief this winter. In Colorado, a stockman who had 175 cows two years ago was down to 47—and he said simply "that's all the land can carry now." In New Mexico, Olin Caviness of Colfax county was one of the state's prosperous ranchers a few years ago. He raised a champion bull that sold for $85,000. In the Fall he had a state job paying $100 a week.

Pathetic as the plight of the Dust Bowl ranchers is, the result has affected stockmen everywhere on the continent, Canada included. There have been heavy marketings of cattle out of this vast area covering more than 14 States, the area which has led in cattle production for decades.

Undoubtedly, there has been a substantially lower price on stockyards due to the drought, but the heavy marketings, whether the rains come or not, can only continue for a few more months—then the cattle will be gone. This tremendous area will be virtually out of production if it remains dry.

Should rainfall return to normal in the coming season, many of these ranchers who have had to reduce or disperse their herds, will be buying, to restore herds. It is true many have lost all but their lands, but they are proven successful stockmen, proven businessmen. They will have little difficulty obtaining loans, possibly backed by their federal government, to restore herds. This buying power, coupled with reduced levels of market cattle for the next 10 years, unfortunate as the situation may be for some, can only assure a continuing high over-all demand for beef, and a relatively high price level for both purebred and commercial cattle.

Congratulations . . .

on the successful Calgary Stampede National Angus Show held in 1956 and to the many Alberta breeders of all cattle for their winnings during the year. Best wishes for an outstanding Canadian National Hereford Show at the Calgary Exhibition and Stampede in 1957.

Beef Cattle Improvement Through Breeding

By ROY T. BERG

Assistant Professor of Animal Husbandry, University of Alberta

Beef cattle producers are becoming increasingly aware of the necessity to improve the efficiency of their enterprise in order to combat the current "price squeeze" in agricultural production and in order to meet the competion of other foods for the consumer's dollar. Generally, improvements come through the application of advances in nutrition, management, disease control and breeding. Most of what is known about feeding, management and disease control is the result of painstaking experimentation in these fields. Usually the hereditary constitution of experimental animals was taken for granted. However, future prospects indicate an increasing amount of beef cattle research will be directed toward the improvement of the animals themselves.

Place of Animal Breeder

The animal breeder is concerned with making permanent hereditary improvements in livestock. To accomplish this goal he relies mainly on the science of genetics, the science which deals with the laws of heredity. Genetics explains why certain people have blue eyes while others have brown, and why certain cattle are red while others are black. More recently, genetics has supplied an explanation of how two animals of the same age and sex, fed the same rations, can still grow at different rates.

From a study of genetics we learn that in the small cells of which the body is made up there are thread-like structures called chromasomes on which genes reside, much in the same way as beads on a string. Genes are the actors or determiners of heredity. Genes determine eye color, horns or hornlessness, coat color and also productive characteristics such as milk production and growth rate. The animal breeder with selection practices and control of matings merely shuffles and sorts these genes and chromosomes, keeping the better animals with superior genes and gene combinations, culling the less desirable animals with inferior genes and gene combinations.

An animal gets exactly one half of its genes and chromosomes from its mother through the egg and one half from its father through the sperm. This is important because it indicates that sire and dam contribute equally to the offspring and one side of the pedigree does not have more influence on the hereditary makeup of an animal than does the other.

Problem of Genetic Improvement

In order to bring about genetic improvement in livestock it is first necessary to decide which characteristics are worthy of improvement. What is important in beef cattle production? The research man and the producer should get their heads together to answer this question. No doubt, general agreement will be obtained that the primary purpose for which beef cattle are kept is to convert large amounts of hay, grass and grain into a highly desired beef product and, furthermore to do this job efficiently. The breeder must therefore attempt to select and breed cattle which will accomplish this purpose.

Records of Performance

Experimental evidence as well as experience of practical breeders suggests that selection will be much more accurate when based on records of performance. Dairymen have for years been recording the milk production of their cows and poultrymen have been recording the egg production of their hens. Some beef cattle producers nave started measuring and recording certain characteristics in their herds in attempting to make them more productive and profitable.

Three main considerations arise in making a decision as to which characteristics of beef cattle are worthy of recording and improving.

- (1) They should have high economic value or be very closely associated with a characteristic having economic value.
- (2) They should be hereditary. The degree to which a characteristic is transmitted from parent to offspring is measured by its heritability. Heritability has a range of zero to 100%, in the former case there is no hereditary influence and in the latter the characteristic is completely determined by hereditary factors.
- (3) They should be easy to measure. No testing program will find wide acceptance if records are difficult to keep, understand and use.

In the light of the above three considerations, it may be worthwhile to consider characteristics which may be useful as measures of performance or productivity in beef cattle.

I. Birth Weight

Birth weight has often been cited as an important characteristic in beef performance testing programs. However, in itself birth weight has little economic value. It also has a low heritability and contrary to what may have been written in its favor, birth weight is not a reliable indicator of other productive characteristics. Birth weight is very easy to obtain but this criterion should not be the sole basis or its inclusion in a selection program.

II. Weaning Weight

Calves which are heavy at weaning time will bring greater profits to the producer who sells feeder calves. Weaning weight has a reasonable heritability which indicates that selection will lead to improvement in this characteristic. Provided scales are available, weaning weights are easy to obtain. For valid comparisons calves should be weaned at a standard age or the weight should be adjusted to a standard age. Corrections for weights of calves one month older or younger than the standard age may not be too accurate.

The most important use of weaning weight is as a measure of the milking ability or productivity of the dam. Cows which are good mothers and milkers will wean heavy calves and those which have small calves at weaning should be culled. When cows are compared on the basis of the weaning weights of their calves, it should be recognized that mature cows will milk more and thus wean heavier calves than young cows. The following corrections should be added to the calf weaning weight of dams of different ages to make the comparisons more accurate.

Age of dam in years:

2 3 4 5-9 10 11 or more Pounds added to calf's weaning weight: 80 40 20 0 20 40

It is known that heifer calves are on the average lighter than bull calves and therefore 25 pounds should be added to the weaning weight of heifer calves to make them comparable to

III. Rate of Gain in Feed Lot

Most beef cattle pass through a feed lot before going to market. Rapid gain while in the feed lot is a very important attribute. It has been shown that breeding animals which gain rapidly and efficiently while on feed will have offspring which possess the same good qualities. In order to test potential breeding animals for gaining ability they should be put on a standard practical ration at weaning and fed for a minimum of 140 days. Weights must be recorded at the beginning and end of the feeding period in order that average daily gain can be calculated. Many experiments have demonstrated large differences in the gaining ability of animals of the same breed, type and sex. It is one of the purposes of a performance test to identify the superior gaining animals in order that they can be selected for the breeding herd.

IV. Efficiency in Use of Feed

The ability of an animal to make efficient use of the feed given him is of unquestioned value to the beef cattle producer. However in order to measure the efficiency of feed utilization of a particular animal his individual feed consumption has to be recorded. This involves individual feeding pens for each animal and such facilities are not currently available except at Universities and Experimental Farms. Fortunately the faster growing animals are generally the most efficient in the use of feed which means selection of fast growing animals will result in improved feed efficiency.

V. Carcass Quality

The final appraisal of a beef animal is made on the carcass. Since breeding animals cannot be tested directly for carcass quality an indirect measure seems necessary. The best estimate of carcass value of a live animal seems at the present time to be an appraisal of its type and conformation. This appraisal is ideally made at or near market weight and market finish. For practical purposes in a performance test the type and conformation of breeding animals is best appraised at the completion of the feed lot test. There are various methods of scoring for type and conformation but a simple method should be used. A practical score might place all animals in three broad classes. The top class, given a score of three, would be those outstanding, healthy animals, sound in feet and legs, long and thick in the body and heavily muscled in the hind quarter. The second group would be of average type reasonably wide and heavy behind. The third group, scored one, would be definite culls, short or narrow and light in the hind quarter. Bulls should be kept only from the top group, heifers which are good in other measures of performance could be selected from the second group as well as the top group.

VI. Fertility and Longevity

Fertility and a long productive life are very important but no accurate early measure of these characteristics is possible. Soundness, health and vigor may contribute to long life. Selection pressure for fertility can be applied by restricting the breeding season to two or three months each year and culling those animals which fail to conceive.

Performance Testing

The purpose of a performance test is to accurately appraise genetic or hereditary differences between individual animals. Therefore environmental conditions must be standardized as much as possible. All animals should be given the same chance to show their worth and special care and feed such as nurse cows will make comparisons invalid. With this in mind the following plan should be followed. (1) Have a short calving period of no more than three months to eliminate seasonal enpossible. (2) Do not use nurse cows as their use makes it impossible to honestly compare the productivity of calves and their dams. (3) Feed all test animals a standard, practical ration that is well balanced in nutritional requirements.

Beef Cattle Experiments At the University of Alberta

Much remains to be learned about testing and selection in beef cattle. The University of Alberta is engaged in studying some of the problems involved. The broad objects of the beef cattle breeding research at the University are:

- (1) To determine the most accurate simple tests for measures of productivity in beef cattle.
- (2) To attempt by selection and breeding systems to improve the productivity of the University beef cattle herds.

The following records are being kept in the University beef herds: (1) Birth weight, (2) Weaning weight at six months of age, (3) Rate of gain on a growing ration from weaning to one year of age, (4) Individual feed efficiency of all animals on test, (5) Conformation or type score. A study is also being made of yearling and 18 months weights of heifers to see if either of these measures can replace the more detailed testing procedure outlined above.

Results at University of Alberta

During the past three years objective measures have been taken of the performance characteristics of the beef cattle in the University herds. Very large differences have been noted between the productive capacity of different animals within any one breed. Although the effect of selection based on performance cannot be determined until the offspring of top performing selected animals begin to arrive, results elsewhere indicate a large part of the superiority measured will be passed on to the offspring.

An example of the kind of differences obtained may illustrate the importance of performance testing. During 1955-

56 the high gaining bull calf grew at the rate of 3.21 lb. per day while the lowest gain was 1.35 lb. per day, a difference of 1.86 lb. per day. An estimate of what such a difference would mean to a commercial cattle producer buying one or the other of the above

Summary of Testing and Selection Plan

The following points should be observed by a breeder setting out to test his herd for performance.

- (1) Shorten the breeding season to about three months or less.
- (2) Identify calves at birth, record their birth date and weight.
- (3) Wean all calves when the average age is six months (a different weaning age could be used as long as it is standard). Adjust all weaning weights to a standard age. Standardizing to 180 days can be done by use of the following formula:

Adjusted 180 day weight equals the weaning weight minus birth weight, divided by weaning age, result multi-

Farm Income For Alberta Up in '56

Alberta farmers had more income in almost every department in 1956 according to figures of the provincial bureau of statistics. Farm cash income totalled $343,000,000 for the first 11 months of the year, compared to the entire 12 months income of 1955 of $316,000,000.

Livestock in 11 months accounted for $132,000,000 against $138,000,000 for all of 1955. Dairy products had realized $26,000,000 and would be slightly down from the 1955 $30,000,000. Poultry at $8,000,000 would be about the same as the previous year.

The livestock slaughter industry set a record in 1956 with sales of $129,000,- 000, up 11,000,000. Meat exports rose 11% in volume and 9% in value.

First National Angus Show Success At Calgary

The concensus was that the Calgary Stampede National Angus Show, held at the Calgary Exhibition July 12, 1956, was tremendous. The awards by many local business firms, all of a utilitarian nature, proved exceedingly popular to the extent that this policy has been carried out in 1957 by the National Hereford Show at Calgary, the Hereford show at Edmonton, and other similar fairs in Alberta, and was adopted lock, stock and barrel by the first National Swine Show being held at the Brandon Exhibition.

Alberta Shorthorn breeders have named committees to continue the breed emphasis at both Calgary and Edmonton in 1958.

The Angus show at Calgary proved that a special show will draw spectators in good numbers. There were more people watching the National Angus Show than at any regular Exhibition and Stampede event of its kind for as far back as most stockmen can remember. Only the Commonwealth Hereford Show in Regina in 1955 has proven a greater drawing card, and Hereford breeders are confident the Calgary Pavilion will be jammed for the 1957 National Hereford Show.

The Angus committee in co-operation with the Calgary Exhibition concluded the show with a reception and buffet banquet, attended by the breeders and exhibitors, officials and the donors of the many fine trophies.

Here are results of the Calgary Stampede National Angus Show, followed by the placings of the other breeds at the 1956 Calgary Exhibition.

Use cheap sheet aluminum as your best fire prevention. If you must run a stovepipe through a frame wall or roof, shape a dummy pipe by hand around the stovepipe where it goes through a partition or wall, and allow the aluminum sheath to extend at least six inches from each wall surface. Going through a roof use strips of aluminum up through the vent hole between the stovepipe and opening, bend down and tack flat before laying or replacing shingles. Properly shielded with aluminum, it is impossible for even a red hot stovepipe to set a fire. Use sheet aluminum to cover walls behind and near a stove or heater or above such heater on the ceiling. Be generous. Aluminum is the best heat conductor available, keep the size more than adequate for complete safety. It's easier to prevent a farm fire, than to extinguish one.

Alberta Breeders Score High Wins At Toronto Royal

The Alberta team at the 1956 Royal Agricultural Winter Fair at Toronto scored possibly the highest wins for the province in history. Actually, due to frost and a smaller wheat entry, the total placings were a few below 1955, but in all other classes, winnings by Alberta were outstanding. In the purebred cattle field and in market classes most Alberta exhibitors came home with a full share of championships and winnings.

Only Highland Stock Farms exhibited for Alberta in the Aberdeen-Angus, scoring a second place in Junior Yearling Bulls with Highland Gregorian 4. In the female Don Matthews led Highland Blackbird Beauty 3 to another second place in junior yearling. Highland Stock Farms placed fifth in the Get of Sire and third in the pair of bulls class.

The latest Dominion Bureau of Statistics index number of commodities and services used by prairie farmers means that the $1.40 initial payment for No. I Northern wheat at Fort William is worth only 633/4 cents in 1935-39 dollars. At the average country elevator point it is worth approximately 55 cents a bushel on the same basis.

*Farmer's Cost of Production 100 219.4 In other words, it now costs prairie farmers $2.19 to buy what $1.00 would buy in 1935-39.

*Dominion Bureau of Statistics Index Numbers of Commodities and Services Used by prairie farmers.

Alberta's Electric Utility Companies are proud of the fact that, on the average electric service today costs the Alberta farmer less than one-third of the cost in 1935-39. This didn't "just happen"! It took planning, efficiency and co-operation from the farmers.

The glass comes in a coarse cloth, and used with a resin and chemical. Advantages, relatively cheap, completely inert, easily applied to a new clean wood, especially plywood. Gives a finish that requires no maintenance, is hard as a rock, ultra clean. Possible uses, build a rame water cistern, line with fibre glass, no cement cracks or leaks, water will stay as pure and clean as in any glass container. Livestock watering troughs, line with fibre glass when new—will end rotting leaks, even green growth or mould.

Tools needed, couple of paint brushes and empty jam or coffee tins. Fibre glass can also be used to line a fish pond in the yard. Is a coming fabric and material for do-it-yourself projects of many kinds. Makes building a rowboat or motorboat a job any handyman can undertake, no caulking necessary.

WHY SOAK THE CAR DRIVER ...?

Although our business is cattle, we are all automobile drivers and so are all deeply concerned with the growing tendency at all government levels, to soak the car driver with excise and sales tax, licences and gasoline tax, parking meters and fines. There are some four million passenger cars in Canada, and the tax and fine collections are staggering. The federal government for the past year collected $80,000,000 in excise tax along with $91,000,000 in the 10% sales tax.

Then the provincial governments took their bite, $95,000,000 in license and registration fees, and another $240,000,000 in gasoline tax (10 cents to 14 cents a gallon). No figure is available for all of the cities in Canada, but in Alberta, Calgary dunned the motorists $123,000 to park on their own streets through the one-arm bandits (meters) and slapped another $63,000 in fines for cars overparked. Edmonton did even better, $247,000 in meter collections, a staggering $331,000 in fines for meter violations (and Edmonton has only a 50-cent fine, compared to Calgary's $1.00).

The federal government collected in all $171,000,000, the provinces $336,000,000, a total of $508,000,000 (spent on highway construction, about $400,000,000). Yet Canada has only 33,000 miles of paved highway, and Canadian cars drove an estimated 35 billion miles. Estimates are there will be 6,000,000 cars in Canada by 1965.

The federal and provincial levy works out to about $128.00 PER CAR a year. Posibly this would be about the average urban tax on home owners of Canadian cities and there is a continual outcry that property taxes have reached the point where it would be impossible to raise them. Why there is no similar storm of protest against the tremendous tax on car owners may be somewhat of a mystery.

It seems time all M.L.A.'s and M.P.'s were informed by as many of their constitutents as possible, that it's time to call a halt on soaking the car owner, AND that all auto tax revenues should go directly to highway construction. The federal government, for example, has for many years (the excise tax was first levied as a special wartime measure in 1918) collected taxes on cars, and up to now has only spent a relatively few dollars aiding the provinces on the Trans-Canada Highway and in building national park roads, but here a yearly fee for every car has contributed at least a part of the road costs. This money must be charged against roads only, for no such levy is made on park visitors by train, bus,

The federal treasury, you could say, holds in trust for the motorists approximately three billion dollars to be used for highway construction. It should build quite a section of highway to meet the demands of another two million cars in another 10 years, for in that 10 years, unless taxes are reduced, the federal government will collect another two and a half billion dollars.

Car owners who pay these excessive taxes should be able to look forward to a vastly accellerated road building program in every province in Canada.

Alberta is in the most favored position in Canada. In the past 10 years the Alberta government as well has collected more than 600 million dollars in oil revenue—and don't overlook—this money as well, comes largely from the motorists, for gasoline sales are the main revenue of all oil companies—it's the motorist who eventually pays, through the gasoline pump, for all of the oil search and development, and oil bonuses to the Alberta government.

GEORGE G. ROSS

Southern Alberta lost an outstanding cattleman in the death last June of George G. Ross of Aden. He was a former president of the Western Stock Growers and one of the most influential ranchers. He had been active in organizing the Council of Canadian Beef Producers and during the war served on the advisory committee of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board. He is survived by his widow and three sons, George Jr., John and Walter.

Calgary Bull Sale Limited To 850 Bulls Again In 1957

The Alberta Cattle Breeders' Association has decided that the pioneer Calgary Bull sale will be limited to 850 animals again for 1957, made up of 600 Herefords, 135 Shorthorns and 115 Aberdeen-Angus. Selecting has been done by J. Chas. Yule for Herefords and W. D. MacDonald for Shorthorns. A maximum of six bulls for each contributor has been fixed, and accepted, if not too willingly. The net result, fear some breeders, will be to force large breeders to seek other markets, while allowing entry of inferior quality bulls.

One year ago, the sale was also limited in numbers, with 841 being actually sold through the ring, with Angus getting the highest average, almost $510. Shorthorn about $500, and Herefords, dropping possibly because of a number of tail-end bulls going close to the $250 mark, averaging $478.

Some breeders have considered spreading the Calgary sale over a greater length of time, so that Herefords could sell the entire 850 allotment set by the Calgary Exhibition, and Shorthorn and Angus held possibly a week earlier, also would have unlimited barn space. No decisions on this proposal have been made, and one difficulty would be the overlapping on the Kamloops Sale. The only evident alternative would be to have the Edmonton Spring Sale moved back by a week.

Complete results of the 1956 Calgary Bull sale follow.

FUTURE FOOD NEEDS

Economists of the USDA estimate for the next 20 years, with an expected population up 25% to 200,000,000 people will require a 33% boost in food production. Cattle and calve output will have to rise 50%, hogs 40%, sheep and lamps 25%, milk 33% and poultry 50%. Feed needs for livestock will increase 35%, and even with advanced technological progress and higher yields, an additional 25 million acres will have to be cultivated.

Cattle numbers in the United Kingdom are on the increase, an estimated 10.9 million head, compared with 10.7 a year ago. Canada's cattle population in 1956 was estimated at 10,465,000, up about 200 thousand over 1955, but across all of Canada, there are slightly fewer cattle than in the British Isles, about a third of the area of Alberta.

Dr. Frank Whiting, animal nutritionist at the Lethbridge Experimental station says cattle in feedlot need Vitamin A supplement (carotene), which comes in green grass and good quality leafy hay. Animals require 1,000 units per day for each 100 pounds of body weight. A vitamin supplement can be obtained from all feed dealers. Symptoms of A deficiency are night blindness, advancing to indications of poor vision in daylight, watery discharge from the eyes, stumbling and wobbling when forced to move quickly, and sometimes legs and brisket become swollen.

Reserve Junior Champion female at the Toronto Royal Winter Fair

by Triumph B Domino 527th stood at the top of the very strong junior yearling heifer class and won Reserve Junior Champion of the show. Her Dam was sired by Ferrybank Royal Domino.

Our other entry placed third in the Summer yearling class of 20. She was Forestburg Domino Lass 25K, by Iron Creek Domino Lad 5G. Her Dam was sired by Triumph B Domino 527th.

We regret the death of Triumph B Domino 527th, grandson of WHR Triumph Domino 45th last Summer. He has done very well for us during the past five years. We have retained most of his daughters which will be mated to our new herd sire son of the imported Wetmore Halflight. We recently purchased him from Lougheed Bros., Bowden, for $2,000, and he is a full brother of Brightlight 8th, which they are using in their own herd. Wetmore Mixer 4th has a wealth of scale, bone and depth of body.

WETMORE MIXER 4th

Stettler Weather Good For 3rd Bull Sale

For the first time in 1956, the Stettler Bull Sale had favorable weather conditions, and it brought out a tremendous crowd to see the judging and selling of the three breeds. Shorthorns led the parade of bulls and females had a $283.00 average. Herefords sold next to average $300.00 and Angus wound up the event with a $283.00 average. There were 25 Shorthorn, 86 Hereford and 13 Angus sold, 124 animals for $36,655 and a $300.00 average, marking the Stettler sale as one of the more satisfactory of the Spring season.

HANK CHARLTON'S 4th BROOKS BULL SALE

The Spring Bull sale at Brooks, held on May 18 featured Bulls of Hereford, Aberdeen Angus and Shorthorn from most of the prominent breeders of Alberta. Most were bought by stockmen of the E.I.D. but there were buyers on hand from as far as Saskatchewan, and Hank Charlton kept bidding at a brisk pace. Bulls sold generally in the $300-$500 range.

The Brooks Bull Sale in 1956 included several consignors, mainly of breeders in the vicinity of the E.I.D. The 1957 Brooks sale will be held on Thursday, May 23rd, starting sharp at 11 a.m. Hank Charlton expects to have approximately 150 bulls on hand. Entries for the Brooks sale must be mailed to P.O. Box 789, Brooks, closing date April 1st. He would particularly like a few more entries of good blocky Hereford, Angus and Shorthorn Bulls. The demand for good range bulls at Brooks is strong. The 1956 sale averaged better than $341.00 without any high price animals, making it possibly the strongest average sale held last year.

First Red Deer Bull Sale is a Success

Launched by Sims Auction Mart and a committee of Central Alberta Breeders, the first Red Deer Bull Sale was held immediately following the Edmonton Spring Sale of 1956. The second Annual Red Deer Bull Sale is set for April 3rd, the Wednesday again following the Edmonton 1957 Sale.

In 20 years, 31 percent fewer workers on Canadian farms produced 75 percent more than in 1935.

Lice rob stockmen by tormenting cattle until they fall off in both meat and milk production, and sometimes even die from the effects. Fall is the recommended time for most effective treatment, and the best method two treatments at an interval of two weeks, applied preferably with a high pressure spray, or with a scrub brush, covering the animal completely.

Recommended for beef cattle, a half pound of wettable lindane powder, or eight pounds of 50 percent wettable DDT, in 80 gallons of water. For dairy cattle or beef for slaughter, eight pounds of 50 percent wettable methorychlor in 80 gallons of water. Rotenone and pyrenone sprays are also effective. Handle all insecticides with care and rigidly follow the directions of the manufacturer.

Indiana rate-of-gain project, launched in 1953, has reached the stage where performance tested bulls are being demanded by commercial breeders who realize the importance of inherited gaining ability to feedlot performance. To meet the demand for P.T. Bulls in 1961, breeders must start acting on a program of their own, in 1957.

EVERY FEMALE SELLING IS FOUNDATION MATERIAL.

We have called this our Review Sale, for we believe the offering is a Review of improvements in our Aberdeen Angus herd over the past 20 years.

The success of our Show Herd on the circuit in 1956 was a direct result of the breeding of our Homeplace Eileenmere 242.

Included in the sale will be BLACKLASS McB 2ND, the undefeated Champion Canadian female, winner at the Calgary Stampede Natioal Angus Show and at other Exhibitions in 1956.

This complete heifer crop will feature the most desirable Aberdeen Angus families available in Canada. Many selling bred to Eileenmere, our Junior Herd Sire, son of $50,000 Homeplace Eileenmere 511.

Another fire prevention twist. If any of your buildings are located where a grass fire could reach them, or if there is any danger of your having to try and control a grass fire, flat pieces of metal can be a help, the larger the better. Keep them handy where they can be thrown on a truck if needed. At the fire lay the pieces of metal along in a row in front of the blaze. It will stop the blaze, and men can make sure embers blowing over the metal are promptly put out. Lacking water, or time to make a fire break, a small truckload of sheet metal can be about the only means of stopping a grass fire.

Hayseed Sid wonders - why it is they can build 2,400 mile pipelines to put crude oil where it's needed, and no one seems to think of a pipeline from larger rivers to move fresh water a thousand miles or so where it would be a lot more use than just running into the ocrea. Say from New Orleans a pipeline back into north Texas and Oklahoma, where drought has about left the country as a desert . . . ? Mebbe some day when the oil has run out, or atomic power runs cars, some of those long pipelines may still be a lot of use. Canada's line for instance. might be run backwards, to send water from Lake Superior back to Regina.

If you have a large area on which you are using paint remover, try spreading the remover generously, if it is a flat surface—and cover quickly with several layers of old newspapers. This retards rapid drying and allows the chemical to dig into the old paint. Saves work and remover.

Across the line . . . USDA research is on the track of tests to show meat tenderness by musle tests of LIVE ANIMALS. It has already been established, meat tenderness is a characteristic which can be passed on to succeeding generations by selective breeding.

If your farm is not too far from an Alberta city and you are looking for a way to make some cash income — why not try growing grass? Not for the cattle or sheep—for the city slickers. Carefully prepare an acre or so of land and plant it in LAWN grass.

New home owners in the cities will buy the grass for their new yard. Gives them a nice lawn immediately. The grass is lifted from the field in rolls, placed on the city yard like a carpet, given a top dressing and watered and rolled. But make sure you'll have a market first — contact contractors or landscape gardeners in the city. Who knows — you may move some of the lawn up around your own farm home. Sow only recommended grass mixtures.

Oh, yes — if the grass isn't sold — it can always be pastured — you can't really lose.

The Year on The Calgary Stockyards

ANNUAL REPORT FOR 1955
By IVAN GARRISON, Chief Inspector
Canada Marketing & Grading Services

The Calgary Stockyards had a successful year in 1956. Total cattle and calf sales showed us still in third place; but in cattle sales we moved into second place among Canadian stockyards by a 37,000 margin. Located as we are between deficit areas prices on the Calgary yards show a difference from Winnipeg and Toronto which was consistently less than livestock freight rates to these points. For 20 weeks the weekly average for good steers was the same or higher than that for good steers at Winnipeg. Livestock freight rates from Calgary to Winnipeg and Toronto are 1.25 and 2.54 per hundred respectively. The average for good steers at Calgary in 1956 was .53 below Winnipeg, 1.59 below Toronto.

The substantial increase in estimated values of livestock delivered to our yards and plants is chiefly the result of increased numbers. There was a significant expansion in numbers in feedlots. This is a healthy situation and will contribute much towards stabilization of the farm income.

The attached report has been kept as brief as possible, keeping in mind the provision of complete information. It is the hope of our Calgary staff that it will be of use in the assessment of changes and expansion of the livestock trade at this point.

Criticism is welcomed.

IVAN GARRISON, Sr. LSP Grader.

Cattle

Nineteen hundred and fifty-six sales of cattle and calves showed a continued upward trend; total sales of 331,980 being an increase of 58,155, or 21.2 percent over 1955.

A sample of 619,880 Alberta cattle from 1956 marketings showed a cow and heifer total amounting to 39.4 percent. This would indicate that the Alberta cattle population is still increasing, though the rate of increase has slowed down.

Distribution of marketings was uniform. Percentages in successive quarters were 22.7 percent, 21.5 percent and 28.7 percent. The second quarter had the lowest total cattle marketings while the highest total occurred in the fourth quarter. This is a normal situation; but the "low high" quarter variation was only 7.6 percent as against 8.6 percent in 1955. Price levels moved over a wider scale than the very narrow range of 1.73 for good steers in 1955.

Good steers sold for a low average of 15.75 in March, climbing a total 4.30 to average 20.05 in September, closing the year at an average of 17.60 in December. The 1956 average for good steers was 17.90, down .36 from 1955.

Good heifers averaged 13.50 for February, the low month of the year. They climbed to a high of 17.85 for the August average, closing the year with an average of 14.40 for December. The 1956 average for good heifers was 15.65, 2.25 less than the average for steers of the same grade. Good cows made their high month in June with an average of 12.90. Their low month was November, at 8.85. Good cows closed at a December average of 9.30, to average 10.75 for the year.

Bulls were in good demand throughout the year. Good bulls sold for a high of 12.90 in June, a low of 9.70 in November and a yearly average of 11.10.

calves, breedy types, attractive equally to processor or feeder. Calf sales amounted to a total of 32,480, 3,393 less than in 1955. Bulk of calf marketings occurred in the final quarter of the year. The average for the year, 15.95, was .85 lower than for the previous year.

Feeders

The consistent supply of good quality feeders at the Calgary market attracts the best buying power, an essential to good prices. Ontario feeders were our best outside buyers. They took a total of some 14,000 during the year. Good feeder steers averaged 16.05, stocker area tributary to Calgary stockyards is calves 15.55, for 1956.

The number o feeder cattle in the estimated to be 12 percent higher at the year end, 1956, over the same time, 1955. Besides expansion of numbers in feedlots there is some increase in the number of operators. It would appear to be sound economics to feed Alberta cattle in Alberta feedlots, using Alberta grown feed.

Export

Cattle exports off Calgary stockyards were very light, the small total of 317 being practically all bulls. American prices remained too low throughout the year to permit buying from this market. Export of beef from Calgary plants continues to provide a useful outlet for surpluses. This has a beneficial effect on our local demands.

Beef Grading

With the increase of feeders and feedlots there has been an increase of numbers of better finished cattle on our market. This is noticeable in the early Fall when "grass" cattle formerly predominated in the offerings; 156,592 beef carcasses were graded at Calgary plants during 1956. This is an increase of some 36,000 carcasses, 29 percent more than the total for 1955. With more cattle on grain or "grain on grass," improved grades would be indicated. This was the case, as shown by the comparative percentages in Table A.

Purchase of cattle on carcass grade basis is not practiced commonly in Calgary plants. While it is common to request a rail check, there is no significant trend toward the use of rail grade as a method of settlement. It has been suggested that a satisfactory live price militates against increased use of "Rail Grade" services. These, however, are available on request.

BRIGHT CATTLE FUTURE SEEN BY AUTHORITY

The manager of the St. Boniface stockyards, W. E. Watson, foresees a shortage of cattle in Canada inside the next 10 years. He does not attempt to predict where all of the cattle will go, but is firmly of the belief in a coming cattle shortage.

Lethbridge Bull Sale Catches Fire

In 1956, the Lethbridge Spring Bull Sale really did catch fire, and bulls were selling as hot as the early Summer day in June. Ranchers seemed to like the kind of bulls offered at the Lethbridge Sale, and breeders who had kept back something good, realized substantial prices. The Lethbridge Bull Sale is not judged, but the buyers seemed completely satisfied and were content to use their own judgment of the kind of bulls they were after, and the prices they would pay.

Edmonton Exhibition Boosts Prize Money For Cattle-Plan Big Hereford Show For 1957

Moving into new ground the Edmonton Exhibition Association during 1956 appointed a new manager, Al Anderson, to succeed James Paul who retired, and at the beginning of the new years, also took a new name.

To clear any misunderstanding, the firm name will still be the Edmonton Exhibition Association Ltd., and as such it will continue the year around activities, such as Spring Bull Sale, Rodeo, Horse Show, the Flyers hockey team, and the big July show, which is to be known as the 'Provincial Exhibition' or as it will no doubt eventually be known, the "P.E."

Fred N. Miller remains as Assistant Manager, and is in charge of all live-stock activities under the new set-up. Plans are for the Spring Bull Sale to be more important than ever, and with it possible increased emphasis on the Alberta Futurity and the Junior Futurity. For 1957, the Spring sale entries are of a reasonable size for all breeds, and prospects of a good sale in the offing.

The Edmonton Exhibition, July 15th to 20th, will inaugurate the boosted prize money for Livestock. With special awards and a $600.00 special addition, the Hereford breeders will have approximately $5,300 offered at the Edmonton Show. This will include as at the National Show in Calgary approximately $1,200.00 in a dozen special merchandise awards.

These are being arranged by the Northern Alberta Hereford Club.

1956 Ex. Had Good Cattle Show

Possibly the largest Aberdeen-Angus entry ever to be seen at the Edmonton Ex. drew a large crowd to the picturesque outdoor show ring, and all were guests of the Angus Ladies' Auxiliary at a noon-time 'under the trees' lunch. The show was successful from all angles, with these results.

Red Poll Association Holds Annual Meeting

The Canadian Red Poll Association held its annual meeting in Toronto January 30th. The secretary, Bert Sumner, now of Kincaid, Sask., reported there had been 40 new breeders registered during the year, but he urged breeders not to allow their annual membership to lapse, and to follow up sales of cattle to new breeders to assist them and assure their continuance in the Association.

A new film, "The Red Poll Story," arrived in Canada from Britain during 1956, and was shown first at the Alberta Field Day, June 1st. The 32-minute film had other showings in Alberta, Saskatchewan and British Columbia and following the annual meeting was being taken to Prince Edward Island.

Through the Saskatchewan government Archives Division, all minutes of the Red Poll Association for 50 years have been micro-filmed for permanent preservation and future minutes will be similarly recorded.

Artificial insemination came into being as far as the Red Poll breed is concerned during 1956, with distribution of frozen semen and 50 calves born by this method. Distribution is from the Tor District Battle Breeders' Unit at Maple, Ont., and is being provided to four units in Alberta and one in the Maritimes as well as the one in Ontario.

On the 1956 Show circuit there were 17 Red Poll herds shown at 12 Fairs, with a total of 284 animals exhibited. Ten herds displayed 48 animals at the Royal Winter Fair, including one herd from Indiana.

During 1956 there were 117 Red Polls to qualify under R.O.P. tests. Ten Alberto breeders had 61 cows qualifying out of the 117 for all Canada.

The Red Poll Association issues a regular bulletin to all members and stockmen interested in Red Poll cattle. Names will be placed on the mailing list on request to H. Sumner, Canadian Red Poll Association, Kincaid, Sask.

RED POLL BREEDERS HONOR GREAT COW

One of the famous Red Poll cows of Canadian history recently went to market. Willow May, -11486-, was 20 years of age. She weighed 1,120 pounds and sold at the stockyards at $8.00 per cwt. "Willow May" held the Red Poll all time milk production record, 152,592 pounds (76 tons of milk), 6,205 pounds of butterfat. Her lifetime butterfat average was 4.16 percent. During her lifetime she produced seven male and eight female calves. Six of her daughters were kept in the Willow Farm herd and their average production to date is 8,243 pounds, or 230,806 pounds (115 tons) in 28 lacerations. Her sons were sold to various herds. One, WIL-LOW MAY'S CROMWELL, -15990-, sired two daughters that lead their respective classes for Canadian production for two years in a row from 1954 to 1956.

Willow May's Sire was Hoosier Basilon Miner, -9873-, son of Mars Basildon Miner, -8748-, imported from the American herd of A.P.A. rp by H. F. Wise of Galahad, Alta. Willow May's Dam was "Pride of Willow Farm," -6105-, bred by Mr. Howes. She had a lifetime production record on nine lactations of 80,073 pounds and was awarded a Blue Seal Achievement of Merit Certificate in 1941.

Red Poll breeders feel Willow May is a wonderful testimonial of the long-evity of the breed, and more remarkable for she not only was a high producer herself, but raised calves that were also record producers, and still retained enough flesh to sell at 1,120 pounds at 20 years of age.

Across in Saskatchewan there is another cow, OATLAND'S CORAL, owned by A. D. Pocock of Moose Jaw, also 20 years of age, who will soon go to market with a production record of 129,787 pounds and a single lactation of 18,134 pounds.

RED POLLS ..

The Truly Dual Purpose Breed have been bred for generations to combine hornlessness, beef, utility, attractive color and over 4% butterfat.

The prepotency of the Red Poll sire in crossing and grading stamps his type and other qualities 98% on his progeny.

They have no rival in the economic conversion of food into milk. They are easy milkers and are as good milk producers and regular breeders at 12 years of age and over as at any other time in their lives, many still producing at 18 years of age. Red Polls are extremely hardy, good rustlers, and almost free from disease. Milk yields do not drop when cold weather sets in and they are unexcelled for easy-calving.

Because they are even-tempered, placid and hornless, animals of all ages run together without the weakest starving. Being dual-purpose they produce the best beefers, with their even fleshing, uniform solid red color and strong constitutions.

Average butterfat test of all Red Poll cows on test in Canada during 1956 was 4.02%.

Red Polls are ideal for the average farmer who must depend on a few cows for milking and still produce a calf that will be profitable. They will average over 7,000 lbs. of milk on a very minimum of home-grown feeds and roughage.

WHAT ABOUT FERTILIZER?

It's a question that has been pretty well settled in some parts of the world, and is still more of a mystery than an answer in others. Our western Canada, whether because of the newness of our settlement, for ours was virgin soil barely 75 years ago, or not, is an area where fertilizers do not play a major roll in either crop or livestock production.

It is true that when one tries to find some of the answers, in Alberta at any rate, not too many answers can be found. Simply not enough experimenting has been done for the average farmer or rancher to know whether he should be fertilizing, and if so, just what type and formula he should use for the greatest return.

Of one thing there seems little doubt -it would be difficult to find a field or pasture where the use of some kind of fertilizer would not repay the cost many times over. The results of fertilizer on cereal crops can be quickly determined, a single crop provides an exact comparison of yield.

It is not that simple when it comes to fertilizing pasture and hay land. But there is one infallible guide. Try fertilizing just part of the pasture. Invariably, the livestock which graze thereon will demonstrate a preference for that part of the field which has been adequately fertilized, whether it be manure or commercial fertilizer. Actually, formula soil food, the brand name commercial variety can be of the greatest benefit, for by using the proper kind—the soil can be bolstered just with the deficient items. If the land is already short in some elements, and the livestock has grazed, or eaten hay from that land—the manure that goes back-will be even more deficient in those same element and minerals.

Another experiment. Place two stacks of hay in the winter feeding area—and allow the cattle free choice. One stack from unfertilized land—the other if possible from the same field, but from a test area which has been fertilized. See which hay the cattle eat by preference.

It is not the concern of research staffs at universities and experimental stations, or of mine, to sell a bag of fertilizer. But those who have conducted scientific and measured tests are convinced, when the average farmer or rancher invests a dollar in fertilizer, the return in dollars is manyfold. Profit on farming and ranching as in any business, is the gross revenue less the expenses. Desirable as are the many old adages, such as a penny saved is a penny earned, the plain truth is most of such sayings are only the now familiar BIG LIE, handed down for generations.

A penny saved will always be a penny-no more-and as time and inflation go on-will be a lot less. Another buggaboo from away back is "A bird in the hand—is worth two in the bush." A bird in the hand is the myth of security—the bushes full of birds are opportunity.

An Alberta committee of university, government and industrial experts on fertilizers published a booklet for the guidance of Alberta farmers, and a foreward in that pamphlet said this-

"Our soil is the foundation of our prosperity, progress and happiness. Deeply rooted in the soil is our independence, our safety and our welfare." BUT SOIL IS EXPENDABLE. Millions of acres were expended in the 1930's. In the past few years, millions of acres have been expended by the worst drought in the Western Hemisphere in the United States. It can happen here. Much of Alberta is classed as semiarid. In these good wet years, we should be building up to stand the drier years which must inevitably come. One way to be prepared is to assure a good rooted stand of grass and hay. Seeding is the aid to growing a better cover of plant life on the soil, and by using fertilizer, we can assure that the grass obtains the proper nutrition to make a strong healthy growth—the kind of growth to bind down the soil while at the same time. increasing the number of pounds of meat that can be produced on an acre of land.

Here in the West, space has been all but limitless. Even now, farms are becoming larger, not because farmers can afford a heavier capital investment in land, and heavier and ever heavier taxes, but because mechanical equipment is being produced to work large acreage. The heavy investment in machinery demands enough land to keep it working at full capacity.

This does not apply to those who specialize in growing livestock. The proper measure of efficiency, is pounds per acre. If by the use of fertilizer and good management, you can double the number of animals which can be carried on the same land, you are in effect reducing your capital investment by 50 percent.

Here is one case history which gives a different angle on fertilizer for livestock. The Anchor Bar Ranch at Irricana made tests in 1954 (Pay-Dirt, a C.M. & S. publication.) A maximum hay yield resulted from the application of 180 pounds of Nitrapills (brand name) per acre on brome hayland. The yield was boosted from 1.04 tons per acre to 2.87 tons, an extra 1.83 tons. Valuing the fertilizer hay at $12.00 and the unfertilized at $8.00, it meant a return of $34.44 per acre where fertilizer was used, against $8.32. The cost of the fertilizer and application was $7.68 per acre leaving an increase in gross return of $18.44.

The fertilized hay was valued at $12.00 and the untreated hay at $8.00 for a very good reason. On actual analysis the good hay was 11.7 percent protein, the untreated hay 7.6 percent protein. Phosphorus content went up from .087 to .210.

Look at this another way. When livestock on the Anchor Bar ate a ton of the fertilized hay, they consumed an additional 82 pounds of protein. To bring the unfertilized hay up to protein level with a supplement feed (32 percent) it would require 260 pounds of supplement, at a cost of something about $14.00. According to the quoted figures, adding thisamount of protein in the forage via fertilizer cost $2.68 per ton. On this basis alone, fertilizer applied to brome, was estimated to return $33.35 per acre in protein.

If you want to carry this form of theorizing through, you may wish to point out, that animals eating fertilized forage, will produce meat higher in protein and nutrition, higher in such things as trace elements, than animals on non fertilized feed. Ultimately, people consuming meat of a higher nutritional value will be getting not only a more nourishing meat—but will also, pound for pound, be getting a better buy for their dollar. We have barely pushed the door open a crack in research in nutrition of plants and animals. It is not impossible that the day may come when much more will be known of what goes into plants and animals, but we needn't wait for that day-let's apply what we know NOW.

Low poultry prices in late 1956 undoubtedly resulted in higher consumption of chicken and turkey. This in turn must have affected the demand for, and price of beef. Outlook in the poultry field, sharply reduced production in the coming year — many lost on raising turkeys last season — smaller volume of poultry, higher prices — and a greater demand for beef. No reason for pessimism here.

Farmer in the States who was efficient enought to have his operation written up in Big magazines, found it paid to pregnancy test his entire cow herd in the Fall. He sold promptly every cow and heifer not in calf, saved the winter's feed and labor, and com-

Other Alberta Directors attending were W. L. McGillivray, Coaldale; Marion Gibb, Killam and D. C. Matthews, Pirmez Creek.

For the Canadian Shorthorn Association, the London meetings brought a re-organization to reduce the number of directors and executive. W. A. Fleming of Truro, N.S., was re-elected President, with the Vice-Presidents, C. W. Thorn of Galt, Ont., and Rhys Williams of Melville, Sask.

R. Gardhouse of Ontario was named Chairman for the coming two years of the Joint Beef Breed Council, with Chas. Leech of Calgary named Secretary. This meeting held each year at the time of the Breed Association annual sessions is a co-ordinating council. One discussion annual is to recommend judges for the Royal Winter Fair Fat Stock Show. Mentioned at London for the coming Royal were Mr. J. Chas. Yule of Calgary, who has judged the event on nine occasions, and a former Albertan, Fred Major. The actual naming of the Judge at the Royal is done by a Committee of the R.W.F.

HEAVY MEAT CONSUMPTION

Canadians last year ate 151.5 pounds of meat per person, which was made up of 72 pounds of beef (highest in many years) 8.8 pounds of veal, 2.8 pounds of lamb, 58 pounds of pork and 9.9 pounds of canned meat and other by-products. In addition, per person consumption of poultry meat was 29.7 pounds.

If you have to install tubeless tires on your old rims—car, truck or tractor, one step is a must—use a round headed hammer, and give every rivet a good clinching—on many old rims, these will leak air. When mounting the new tire, use soapsuds all around each rim—so the tire will settle firmly into the bead. Use a steel wire brush to remove all rust from rims.

When you've finished with the seed drill, try dusting DDT powder generously into the drills. When needed again, they will be free of cobwebs and insects.

The day may not be too far in the future when stockmen will buy disease PREVENTION, instead of disease treatment for their livestock. In the past many stockmen called the vet when an animal was well advanced in the disease. In the future, the vet may be hired to prevent, rather than treat disease, by many forms of innoculation and vaccination.

In February, 1957, just a few weeks ago, 67 Shorthorn Bulls were bought in Southern Alberta to go to the United States. The sale was handled by Mr. J. W. Durno, with the cattle bought by Mr. Walter A. Hall of Yakima, Washington. He intends to use 27 of the bulls himself, with the other 40 going to Nevada where the Shorthorns will be used on a herd which includes some Purebred Herefords and Commercial Herefords. The Bulls were obtained from Dalbo Realties, Braeside, Rannoch Laudon, Hymas, Joe Manuel, Dahm Bros., Kinney Bros., Nerland, Yule and others. Mr. Hall intends to return to Alberta possibly in November looking for additional bulls. Some of the Alberta bulls may go to a large ranch in the Western states which turns out 400 bulls each Spring on the cow herd.

The sale of this number of Shorthorn bulls may mean a reduced entry at Lacombe and Lethbridge Sales. Buyers looking for Shorthorn bulls should not delay, and the reduction may also mean higher prices for all bulls late in the season.

1956 Red Deer Exhibition Had Fine Cattle Show

Possibly due to the National Angus Show at Calgary, the Red Deer Fair had its largest and best Aberdeen-AngusShow in many years. And with all of the cattle being judged at the same time in the spacious show ring, there were possibly more spectators for the Red Deer Livestock show than at any other major exhibition in Alberta. Here are the results of the shows:

Alberta stockmen learned with sadness of the death in January at Cheyenne, Wyo., of Robert Lazear, 67, widely known manager of the Wyoming Hereford Ranch. WHR had been one of the most popular strains of Hereford imported in Alberta from across the line. Bob had judged the Calgary Bull Sale a few years ago, and was judge of the Commonwealth Hereford Show at Regina in 1955, and had on many occasions extended a hearty welcome to Alberta stockmen visiting the WHR just east of Cheyenne. The sympathy of Alberta breeders will go to Mrs. Lazear and to his brother.

Stockmen Talk Markets

Something like 600 attended the 61st annual convention of the Western Stock Growers' Association held in Calgary in February, and the cowmen demonstrated their ability to provide their own entertainment and instruction. With no burning issue, a panel on present stockyard marketing methods drew intense interest. The panel lined up some real experts, Earl Maning of the Meat Packers Council, Charlie Kennedy of the Alberta Stockyards, Gordon Burton for the W. S. G. Geo.

TO ENCOURAGE TO PROTECT

Since 1896 Stockmen have been organized through the Western Stock Growers' Association to encourage and protect the livestock industry of Western Canada. For 60 years, 10 years longer than the history of Alberta as a province, this association has worked for the betterment of the livestock industry.

All Stockmen should be Members!

Never in the history of the Livestock Industry in Western Canada has it been more necessary that stockmen should be more strongly organized to encourage and protect their industry. This is your invitation to join the Western Stock Growers' Association. WHO MAY JOIN? Any stockman interested in his industry, WHAT ARE THE DUES? Dues are payable annually and are based on cattle sales of the previous year as follows:

10c per head on all raised cattle sold, plus

5c per head on all purchased cattle sold, plus

5c per head on all calves sold.

Minimum Annual Fee, $5.00. HOW DO I JOIN? Merely send your dues to the Association in the appropriate amount.

WESTERN STOCK GROWERS' ASSOCIATION

Incorporated 1896

321 Alberta Stockyards - Calgary

Winkelaar of the A.L.C. and Carl Anderson of the E.I.D. with Grant Mac-Ewan, MLA, as chairman.

Grant was accused of having a fast stop watch for each speaker's seven minutes and a two-minute maximum for answering the many sharp questions. By the time the session ended almost every aspect of cattle marketing had been covered, directed and viewed under microscopic questions. The net result-cattlemen appear to feel the commission firm-stockyardauctioneer method is doing a pretty good job. Of course, some would like a mite higher prices, but by and large the system is working well enough and there were no advocates of any startling change.

With a pixie approach, the question was asked "Are the auctioneers being too highly paid?" At the outset no definite stand was taken-and the discussion finally brought on a pair of resolutions. The first bluntly saiddo not lower the high standard of auctioneers at the Calgary yards. The next, a little more oblique in wording, said—if the commission firms could obtain auctioneers at a lower rate of pay-that any saving should be returned to the producer by a corresponding reduction in the $1.50 per head charge made for handling and selling the cattle. However, the emphasis was that auctioneer standards should be maintained at the highest possible level, rather than risk the possibility those with less ability might lose for the seller, more than the economy of lower rates would achieve.

The convention endorsed a boost in its own membership fees, making the $5.00 minimum annual levy a base, and levying 10 cents a head on cattle, five cents on calves and three cents on animals bought and sold, such as feeders, over and above the flat $5.00. The sheep rates are one-fifth of those for cattle.

The issue of hunters in the Fall drew sharp attention, and unanimous agreement that hunting laws should be amended to require each hunter obtaining permission from the owner before entering private lands.

Wayne Darrow of Farm Reports Inc. of Washington, D.C. rated an expert on looking into the future spoke on "Where does the cow business go from here." His view was that the peak of cattle population in the U.S. may have been passed in 1956, with numbers now on the down trend. He was not too optimistic of the immediate future, for at the start of a downtrend, marketings of she-stuff would be heavier than normal, but he forecast a relatively strong market from 1958 through 1962.

The drought area could upset all predictions. This huge seven-state region normally produces 37 percent of the cattle in the U.S. If rains do not come soon ,there will continue heavier than average marketings out of this area. If it rains by April of this year, this flow of cattle would cease, and there could be an upward spurt in prices during the coming Summer.

Dick Painter told the stockmen not to expect the systemic insecticides for possibly five years, as research and testing must be done to establish the commercial value of the internal treatments. Elgin Senn of the Livestock grading branch explained inner workings of cattle carcass grading and branding, and predicted a division of the C or Commercial grade reasonably soon. D. M. Stewart impressed the "Frontier Days" in Leduc and District is a bright 184-page personal history of the region South of Edmonton, covering the era from the first settlement in 1891 to 1956. Many communities in Alberta might consider compiling just such a history of their own district, to record while the pioneers are still with us, some of the information concerning those early days.

The Frontier Days in Leduc is a book all interested in the history of Alberta will want in their personal library. The book may be obtained from W. A. Bell, Town Secretary, Leduc at $2.50. If ordering by mail, add 15 cents or postage. Only a limited number are available. Frontier Days was compiled and edited by Mr. C. H. Stout, veteran Alberta newsman, and himself a pioneer of the Leduc district in 1895. Many of the people of whom articles pertain, were his childhood friends and neighbors.

The U.S.D.A. looks for a wider spread between grades of cattle in the coming months. Last year, a heavy run of well finished cattle resulted in a very small premium. However, a bigger proportion of the cattle on feed during the winter have been young stock, the experts look for a wider spread during the coming year and a better relative price for all well finished steers.

Recent reports from the United States indicate some success with new liquid cattle feeds. Tanks, not bins, hold feed, movement can be by pipe or trough (glass lined). Basic ingredient is molasses, with calcium, urea (nitrogen(phosphorus and trace minerals added. It is doubtful if this method will be seen in Western Canada in the near future, but eventually it may be applied in larger feedlots, where labor elimination will warrant experimenting.

WHAT'S NEW?

Dark beef can drop the grade of the carcass—mean less money for you as the producer. And the newest result of research shows that stress can darken beef. If the animal is under strain and stress before slaughter the resultant meat will be shades darker. Researchers at the University of Missouri where the tests were conducted explain, when an animal, or a person, is aggravated, mistreated and under strain or worry, the body produces increased amounts of adrenaline. This produces internal re-actions which produce a darker shade of muscle fibre after slaughter.

On the same line, rough handling of livestock, as we all know, causes bruises which force trimming and waste. It's all a loss to the industry—and these losses from whatever cause—have a way of working back to the producer. You never hear of wholesalers, retailers, packers or handling agents losing money for very long. The mechanics make it simple for them to pass along the losses, simply by paying the producer less for his animals.

One large Alberta rancher, running some 1,500 cattle, is going to try artificial insemination in 1957. He normally has been spending some $10,000 a year to maintain his bull battery. With frozen semen costs and hiring a vet for two months this summer he expects to cut his breeding costs about in half. This will not be popular with bull producers, but it may portend a coming trend among the commercial men. However, if a rancher gambles on one bull, his losses are not too extensive. If for any reason his gamble on artificial insemination ever fails—his losses in one season on this size operation would be far more costly than a lifetime maintaining an extensive bull battery.

World population is approximately 25% above the 1939 level.

Hereford Year In Alberta Shorthorns Plan For 1958

This 1957 is Hereford year in Alberta, not only to be highlighted by the Canadian Hereford Round-up (Cangress) and the National Hereford Show at the Calgary Exhibition and Stampede, but by enhanced shows at the other leading fairs and exhibitions.

The Hereford Show July 9th at Calgary should be one of the finest ever seen in the West, with an entry of Omar Broughton, formerly Farm Broadcaster at CJOC, Lethbridge, has recently been appointed Secretary to the Board of Directors of the Alberta Wheat Pool, Omar did his Farm broadcasts for six years at Lethbridge, moving down from a farm in Donalda. He was a navigator in the RCAF and graduated in 1950 from the University of Alberta in Agriculture.

some 200 or more animals from across Canada, and possibly some of the top show herds from the United States.

Immediately following Calgary will be the Edmonton Exhibition, with at least $600.00 added to the already fine prize money for Herefords. The following week, the cattle will be on display at the Lethbridge Exhibition and Rodeo, with an extra $300.00 for Herefords and then the Red Deer Exhibition the beginning of August, also with prize money boosted by $300.00.

This is the plan at this early date in the Spring. In addition, at all of the four shows, there will be valuable trophies and awards, made possible by donors in the regions involved. Each trophy at the Calgary Show will be valued at approximately $100.00, donated by the Canadian Bank of Commerce, Jenkins, Your hometown food store; Globe Laboratories of Canada, Ltd., Pioneer Feeds, Burns & Co. Ltd., Mel's Lumber, Imperial Oil Ltd., Calgary Brewing & Malting, Birks Jewellers. Canadian Western Natural Gas Co., Palliser Hotel, and John D. McAra. ALL OF THE AWARDS WILL BE USEFUL AS WELL AS DECORA-TIVE.

For example, the awards at Calgary will be a barometer, set of silverware, rose bowl and candlesticks, radio, leather bags, shotgun, desk pen set, lamp, binoculars, clock, silver tea set and an oil painting. A similar style of awards to be won will be available at Edmonton, Red Deer and Lethbridge.

Similar trophies at the 1956 National Angus Show proved highly popular with all of the breeders, to such an extent a similar set up of awards has now been arranged for the Canadian Swine Show at Brandon in July.

With something like $2,000.00 additional in cash at Alberta Fairs for the breed of the year, plus merchandise awards which may run upward of another $3,000. each Summer, breeders should give careful consideration to showing when it is the year of their breed, even if they usually have passed up this activity in the past. The additional cash provides for prize money for more places in each class, assuring most of the exhibitors an opportunity to "make expenses" on the Show circuit.

The greatest value, as it has always been, of course is the chance to have their cattle seen by prospective buyers. The National Angus Show drew a good attendance, and the Hereford Shows this Summer are expected to have a "full house."

For 1957, we have the full cooperation of the major exhibitions in this "Breed of the year" program. Now what is required is the cooperation of the breeders to aid these exhibitions to have their greatest cattle show. If you cannot show your cattle, it will be well worth your while to attend the events at Calgary, Edmonton, Red Deer and Lethbridge. See the fine display of the finest cattle in the West, and by your attendance, encourage the fair management in their effort to do a better job of aiding you in your cattle business.

Alberta Futurity Is Highlight Of Edmonton Spring Sale

Now entering its fifth year, the Alberta Futurity has added sparkle to the Edmonton Spring Show, highlighted each year by the Wednesday evening interbreed finals. There interbreed events have been subject to criticism by some breeders, but they do provide a good crowd pleasing event, and an attraction which draws many spectators from outside of Edmonton. It is possible these visitors stay to buy at the sale the following day, for their interest in good cattle is manifest by their attendance at the show.

The 1956 Futurity, in contrast to former years, was almost a Hereford Show. Here are the results:

"ALBERTIANA"

There's the story of an oil rich Albertan who was driving along the road in his big car when he came to a toll bridge. The attendance said: "The toll is one dollar." The Albertan fumbled in the pockets of his expensive suit, and appeared perturbed.

"Son," he said, "I don't seem to have any small change. How much is the bridge?"

An Alberta rancher with oil rights walked into his Lincoln dealer's show room, and spoke to a salesman. "My wife isn't feeling too well—what do you have in a 'get-well' convertible?"

This year's Alberta Cattleman's Annual will go to some 8,000 stockmen, mainly within the province. Analysis of the mailing list brings out this information, Although Southern Alberta has long been considered, and unquestionably is the cattleman's region, not only of Alberta but the ranching center of all Canada, the Annual goes in almost as large numbers into Central and Northern Alberta. This is the expanding market area for those who produce the kind of cattle to improve the beef. There are approximately 300 Annuals mailed into the Athabaska area, and the same to Peace River. Jasper-Edson also more than 300, Wetaskiwin region close to 600, Vegreville 450, Camrose close to 600, Battle River 400, Bow River 400, Camrose 600. These are the Central and Northern federal constituencies. In the Southern part of the province, Bow River 400, Medicine Hat 500, Lethbridge 300, Acadia 450, Red Deer 600, Fort Macleod 600, and Calgary area 400. These are all minimum figures, as not all post offices are listed in our

The Annual goes to approximately 800 of the 1200 post offices in Alberta. It is, we believe, the most complete coverage of the cow business in the province, going as far as possible to all who buy at consignment and private sales.

Bunkhouse Philosophy

By "Bill" Cochrane

We reckon that it isn't always a good policy to look back over what has taken place in the years previous to the one we are living in, especially in the livestock business, as the keepers of the herds and flocks have gone through quite a number of years they would prefer to leave buried in the past. Years of cold weather, scarcity of fodder and low prices which tested their resources well beyond any limits they thought they possessed to win through. But they stuck with the job they loved and, by thunder, it is a good thing they are made of such good stuff, or the folks in other lines of endeavor might have gone short of steaks and roasts.

This past year they have again exemplified their stick-to-itiveness. They have, here in West especially, improved their herds to the point where they are now a force to be reckoned with in the annual exhibitions throughout the continent. In a nation's economy that appears to have gone hog-wild, they have maintained and improved both quality and quantity of their products in the face of a declining market price. The press has been full of foreign events, demands of organized labor for increased wages and shorter hours here at home, reports of commissions, comments pro and con regarding pipe lines to serve our neighbors in the East, suggestions regarding our trade with other countries and so called considered opinions of fellers in high places on how to regulate same. But noticeably absent was a recognition of the importance of meat producers to the economy of the nation.

While meat has been recognized as the most important item on our bill of fare, it seems that the folk who are constantly harping about industrialization of our fair land, have the old worn out idea that there will always be plenty of country folk whose love of the soil and wide open spaces will keep them busily producing increased quantities of grub; and cause them to forget the increasingly high prices of the supplies needed in their operations, the steadily rising costs of transportation, both in shipping their requirements and getting their beef to market, the difficulty in installing modern conveniences, and in many cases their isolated position.

It might be truthfully said, that greater love hath no man than this, that he will keep on plugging along, acting as his industrialized brother's keeper, while said brother is demandOH

ing increased stipends, shorter hours and fringe benefits. The grub producer's reward being his independence of a factory whistle and his fringe benefits only being privileged to rise up in the cold grey fringe of the morning, and keep going till the fringe of the evening, and then when he gets his charges finally bedded down for the night, lights his pipe and settles down to hear the news of the day, being entertained whilst waiting for some feller warbling over the air—the more or less popular song, "It's Almost Tomorrow." He absorbs the market reports and does a heap of figuring in an endeavor to find out if he is going to realize enough out of his feeding operations to pay his taxes and expenses and have enough left over so he can afford a trip to the bright lights to visit some members of his family who have been enticed there by the easier money and bob-tailed days of industry. We sure admire the young folks of the ranch and farm who are sticking to the meat producing jobs. They may not be realizing prices comparable to industrial labor at the moment but they are sure getting lessons in economics that will train them for future leaders, and you only have to frequent some of the large agricultural shows to become acquainted with their business abilities.

We reckon that some of our hired help down at the Capital city would like to do something about the lop-sided economy that puts our primary industries in an unfavorable position, as regards their share of our nation's income, as they realize the importance of having an assured grub supply. For if our people on the land get plumb disgustipated over the short supply of help to run the farm, the marketing situation and unequal dollar sharing, they might just pack off and go fishin' till the situation got adjusted somewhat.

We dont' look for too much legislative help however, as our legislators seem to have too many other things to talk about, and not too many constructive ideas concerning our agricultural population. We hear tell occasionally

HARRY HAYS Box 118, Calgary Phone 30855 about our old political issue of tariffs and have been told it is useless to bring it up, as it is a dead issue. By thunder, it isn't dead by any means as it affects our farm and ranch population.

We really think it is very much alive but perhaps concealed would be a better term as we find tucked away inside one of our papers a little item saying as how the steel boys think they should have a bit more protection.

Some of our industrial boys are also kicking because our cousins to the South won't permit them to export into the U.S.A. as freely as they would like. Don't suppose it ever occurs to them that we have a pretty steep tariff on a lot o stuff coming into our domain, and things might work out better if we made things a bit easier. Our hired help down Ottawa way could aid the livestock industry a considerable amount if they would do a bit more hoss-tradin' with our friends as we are just about fed up with paying upwards of 25 percent on wearing apparel and a lot of other articles coming across that invisible border. They are advo-cating a freer trade policy for the countries of Western Europe to help straighten things out. It might work over here.

We always have wondered if we elected a durned good bunch of hoss traders to our legislative halls they might get more done than some of the boys who seem to forget they are supposed to look after the interests of this last Great West.

Our beef industry has progressed in spite of declining prices until its quality is second to none. All the other industries that can be packed into our country won't amount to a great deal if they don't have their meat rations.

The keepers of the herds should be accorded great credit for keeping the country supplied with their steaks and roasts, in spite of the lop-sided economy. May they always make a big shadow and sit high in the saddle.

The Federal Immigration Department expects 200,000 immigrants, about half from the United Kingdom, during 1957.

Canada's estimate of population as at Jan. 1, 1957, was 16,344,000, an increase of 526,000 for the year. A similar increase during 1957 will put the Canadian population close to the 17-million mark.

Canada's Top Hereford Show Herd Feeds Pioneer Exclusively

Well known Hereford breeder, J. A. Paul, Okotoks, Alta. can well be proud that his 'Real Blocky Supremes' are now described throughout the Canadian Hereford fraternity as "The Most Winning Herd."

Like Jack Paul, you too can get these results with good cattle, good management and good feed. Call in today and discuss it with your nearest Pioneer dealer.

Pioneer 32% Beef Cattle Concentrate with Stilbestrol is making bigger daily gains and more profit for the Feeder.
